MAINTAIN YOUR FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE

Coping with illness

You're new to the job market and living life to the fullest. Your salary means you can finally do some of the things you've always planned to do. But what would happen if your new life was turned upside down overnight because of a critical illness? No matter how old you are, being diagnosed with a critical illness does not have to be overwhelming. Rest assured, Transition is designed for you!

We're here so you can take care of yourself

Transition critical illness insurance provides financial assistance that's easy to apply for, and that helps you focus on recovery, without having to worry about your finances.

Getting started early pays off!

Critical illness insurance is an effective solution to protect yourself against a situation like this. Also, the younger you are when you take out the policy, the more affordable your premium will be.

Alex is 22 years old and had been working as a carpenter for four months. Suddenly, he was diagnosed with a cancer of the right testicle, which has his doctor very concerned.

On top of dealing with the consequences of his illness, like treatments and medications, Alex suddenly doesn't have any income and isn't able to cover his financial obligations: rent, car and student loans, credit card payments and the cost of his tools for work.

What is critical illness insurance for?

Because the benefit is paid in a lump sum and is not taxable, you can decide the best way to use this financial assistance:

- Meet your financial obligations like rent, car payments and groceries during your recovery period.
- Hire services to help you at home with your responsibilities.
- Cover transportation costs for travelling to your treatment, as well as food expenses.
- Pay for medications or treatments that are not covered by your government plan.
- Make plans for outings and trips, because life keeps going.

It's simple, you can use the lump-sum payment however you want!

Give yourself peace of mind – get a medical second opinion

A critical illness diagnosis can have major implications for you and your loved ones. When you purchase Transition coverage, you also get unlimited access to the MediGuide Medical Second Opinion service at no additional charge.

This service gives you access to a group of expert physicians who can confirm the initial diagnosis and recommend the treatment plan best adapted to your situation – a reassuring second opinion.
